HOW THE COHENS TRANSACT BUSINESS

Carl Dahlberg told Judge Diehl yesterday how Lizzie Cohen had persuaded him to take a walk down Commercial street with her on Wednesday evening; how they went in behind a building; how Lizzie hugged and caressed him; how he made an engagement to meet her on the following evening; how they parted; how he discovered the loss of $10 from his pocketbook, and how the woman was found in a room with her husband hitting the pipe.

Dahlberg did not like to tell the story.

but the Assistant County Attorney, Dana Smith, insisted, and the young man finally disclosed the process by which he had had his eye teeth cut.

Officers Corless and Gulbranson told of the arrest of the woman. She declared that she was sick and had not been outside of the room all day. Her husband declared it was an outrage. He begged the officers to look at his wife's throat and, while they were inspecting the throat, she took some greenbacks out of her stocking and slipped them to the man. He then ex-cused himself and left the room without coat or hat. He did not come back. Officer Williams arrested him as a suspicious character and turned him over to Officer Brown. Officer Brown did not know what to do with him and let him go. When Sergt. Hempel ordered Cohen's arrest Brown recaptured him. When the testimony was all in Cohen

Mrs. Pember Escapes Shock and Is Cured of Rheumatism and Debility

A few years ago the happiness of Mrs. Lucretia A. Pember of No. 58 Lebanon avenue, Willimantic, Conn., was disturbed by constant fear of a paralytic shock. An annoying numbress had appeared from time to time in her left arm and this, in connection with a generally debilitated state, she regarded as a signal of danger. It caused her great anxlety and finally led her to adopt a course by which she was relieved not only from the dread of a shock but also from other serious interferences with her health. She gives the following detailed account of her experience:

"For several years I was subject to a numbness in my left arm. It did not stay there all the time, but would go and come again. Sometimes there would be a sharp pain. Every time it came it suggested a paralytic stroke and alarmed me greatly.

"This was not all, for I had rheuma-tism in validity have which "The doctors gave me but little relief,
